Mrs. A. Hunn has sent to this office some souvenirs. One is a small piece of grass rope which was cut from the rope that went around a man's neck, in Alabama, who paid the penalty on the scaffold for killing six men. The other is a minnie ball that she picked up on her place that had doubtless been there since the Civil war, fifty years ago.
Squire Spencer Emerson, who was a prominent and highly respected citizen of the Fonthill section, Russell county, died on the 26th ult. He was a victim of a cancer. He will be greatly missed, not only by his immediate family, but the entire neighborhood. He was a Master Mason and was buried with the usual formalities of the fraternity.
When every body admits that a loose leaf house at Columbia would be a paying enterprise, why is it that a meeting is not called for the purpose of getting up an organization? It will take some money to buy grounds and erect the buildings, but a great many men have already signified a willingness to take stock. Start the ball. It would gather rapidly.
The Review of Reviews came in on good time. The last issue was one of great interest. The writings on the situation in Europe are of special interest, and the other articles were written by the best and most thoroughly posted men. If you are not a subscriber for this periodical you are missing much. Send for it. 30 Irving Place, New York City, N. Y.
Bates' Improved Gate is now on exhibition on the vacant lot next to the old livery barn. A great many people are calling, to see it operate, and it is the universal expression that it embodies more points of excellence than any other gate. It is a lever gate that never gets out of order; do not have to dismount to operate it, and every man who owns a farm should purchase a right. It is simple in mechanism, does not require a skilled man to make them. Mr. Gates has already sold several rights.
Dr. S. P. Miller, S. H. Mitchell and Walker Bryant, local Board, having been working on the list of all those who registered on the 5th of June. When completed it will be sent to Frankfort and from there it goes to Washington. Every man who registered is numbered, and the drawing will take place in Washington, then the numbers will be sent to each county throughout the United States. The local boards and the State boards will pass upon those drawn. From now on the work will be pushed.
The canvass for the Republican nomination for the State Senate, in the district composed of Clinton, Cumberland, Monroe, Russell and Wayne is growing warm. There are three candidates, Hon. Robert Antle, the present incumbent, Mr. Jas. Newman and "Uncle" Billy Allen. The two former are the most active, and they are riding day and night. The vote between these two gentlemen will likely be close, as both stand high in the counsels of their party. From a moral standpoint both of these gentlemen bear enviable reputations. Uncle Billy is also a dispenser of the Gospel, and he is running with his shirt collar unbuttoned, claiming that he is in the fight.
I will close out the balance of my slippers and straw hats at cost for cash. Call and see me before buying.
38-2t T. E. Waggener.
Notice to the Public.
I have gone to a great deal of expense to install a delco light plant, so as to give my patrons the very best service possible. Electric equipment throughout, with fans and engine, which enables me to do the work quicker, better and with more comfort. With the above equipment and by the use of Sommoform, (the safest general anesthetic known) for the extracting of teeth, puts me in position to say, I have one of the best equipped dental offices in Southern Kentucky. When in need of first-class work give me a call. All work guaranteed. All instruments electrically sterilized before use.

To the Republican Voters of Adair County:
The numerous friends of Pleas Wesley in Casey County are glad to know his race for Superintendent in that county grows brighter day by day and take this method of assuring them that he is the right kind of a fellow to win. He is a wheel horse in a hard fight and can be depended upon to do his share to make the fight victorious.
If elected he will make you an officer of whom you will be proud.

J. O. Russell, Executor
Kizzie W. Russell.
Liquor legislation was written into the Food Control Bill in one of the Senate's bitterest contests. It would strike at consumption of distilled intoxicants by commandeering stocks in bond in addition to absolutely prohibiting manufacture of importation. The beer and wine industries would be left undisturbed. In lieu of the section of the House bill to prohibit the manufacture of foodstuffs into beverages of any description the Senate substituted by a vote of 45 to 37, a provision prohibiting manufacture and importation of distilled spirits during the war, and added to 12, a further clause directing the President to take over all distilled spirits in Government bonded ware houses and pay for it on the basis of cost plus 10 per cent.

The Red Cross Entertainment.
One of the most enjoyable affairs, pulled off in Columbia, for many months, was the Red Cross Musical and literary entertainment given on the lawn at the home of Miss Vic Hughes last Wednesday evening. Nearly every family in Columbia was represented by two or more members, and the evening was most delightfully spent. The principal music was made by Miss Hughes' Victrola which was kept constantly going from 8 to 11 o'clock. The admission fee was 10 cents, and besides the money raised at the gate, ice cream and salted peanuts were sold, and quite a bit of money was raised which will go to swell the Red Cross fund. During the evening Miss Eva Walker, in her happy style, gave an amusing reading. Miss Hughes was assisted in entertaining by Misses Mary Lucy and Leonora Lowe, Kate Gill, Jennie McFarland, Edna Lewis, Mary Grissom; Mesdames Edwin Cravens and Nat Walker.
Red Cross Meeting at the Methodist Church.
On Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, a meeting will be held at the Methodist church for the completion of the Red Cross organization. The Secretary has received all necessary authority to complete the organization. A treasurer and assistant or vice chairman will be selected. The assistant chairman is to be a lady.
A board or executive committee consisting of 9 members is to be appointed consisting of 6 men and 3 ladies.
The American Red Cross is a patriotic and humane organization, and any citizen of the United States may become a member by paying $1 annual membership fee. Membership imposes no obligation of personal service either in time of war or peace. It is not to be confused with enrollment for special service. Comparatively few will ever be called on to serve in the field, but every one can serve at home by becoming a member and getting others to join. This chapter includes Columbia and Adair county, and any one may become a member of this chapter by sending their name and $1 to the secretary, Mrs. R. F. Rowe. Those paying $2 will receive the Red Cross Magazine. Then any amount may be given from $5 to $100. But being a member doesn't obligate any one to pay more than $1 per year.
J. O. Russell, Pres.
Notice.
All persons holding accounts against the estate of E. W. Reed, deceased, will please present them to me, properly proven, for payment.

Blockade of Germans.

The powers of control over the export trade conferred upon the President by the Espionage Law are new and unprecedented. His public explanation of how and to what extent they will be exercised is accordingly well advised in order that all industry affected may know where it stands. The export of food stuffs and other necessities will be directed rather than embar-goed is an unexceptional statement. That our own needs will have first and those of our associates in the war second consideration is made clear enough and was to be expected.

But when it comes to a further division of our export surpluses among "the neutral nations whose people depend on us," there is going to be prohibition as well as "direction," and why not say so? We have not gone into the business to help Switzerland and Holland and Scandinavian supply the armed camp of Germany with sorely needed American products, and this is information that may as well be given to them out loud. Germany up to this time has been only partially blockaded. After stripping Belgium and Roumania and Russia Poland to the limit, it has been and still is managing to obtain large supplies of foods and war material from the surrounding neutral nations. This is made evident by the discount of nearly 50 per cent., for the German mark in the exchanges on these countries which reflects as well their large and enormously profitable export trade to Germany.

New Germany is to be really blockaded. Those neutral countries are not going to be permitted to continue this trade on the strength of imports from the United States to keep filled up the resulting gaps in needed supplies for themselves. Germany invited war along this as along other lines, and now it is going to be war along this as other lines. While meaning as much, the President might as well have said it.

Save the Ewe Lambs.

The only way to increase the number of sheep in this country or even to maintain the present number is to save some ewe lambs. Furthermore, no sheep owner has any business depending upon the other fellow doing it. It is a personal matter. If each man does not save his own ewe lambs he deserves to do without.

It may be difficult to carry the lambs through the summer, but we can do it successfully if proper methods are used. Here and there all over the sheep-producing sections farmers are carrying lambs through the summer successfully and disproving the fallacy that they will have to die.

It is mainly a matter of dodging the stomach worm, and this can be done by changing pasture often. It is desirable to change the sheep once a week through the hot part of the summer and less frequently as the days become cooler. After the sheep are removed from a field they should be kept off for as long a period as practical.

This calls for several fields, but if the best possible is done the results will usually be very good. As soon as clover hay is cut or wheat harvested the sheep and ewe lambs that are to be saved should be put on one of these fields. In a short while they can be changed from the wheat to the hay stubble or vice versa. There may be an oat stubble field or two wheat or clover fields so that another change will be possible. After they have stayed in these fields until they need moving it may be practical to take them or just the lambs to an orchard that is in grass or to some pasture that has not had sheep on it for months for a week or ten days. Then by moving around for short periods from one field to another the lambs may be brought to the time when they can be turned into the corn fields to eat weeds and grass along the fence. They will hurt the corn little or none. After staying there until moving is desirable they may be moved to a second corn field. By that time they may be moved back to a meadow or wheat stubble, but not with the old sheep, if the latter have been kept in one field long. They can be moved from the meadow or wheat stubble to a pasture that has not had sheep on it since spring and from there to a fall pasture of rye, oats, barley or crimson clover.—Southern Agriculturist.

Obituary

Amanda Ellen Reece Fudge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Reece, was born March 6th, 1861. Was married to Otho Fudge Dec., 4th, 1880. To this union was born four children; Mr. Beach Fudge, Mrs. Amos Hurt, Mr. Curb Fudge and Miss Cordie Fudge.

Bro. and sister Fudge lived happily in their home near Breeding, Ky., with their family with and near them until Sept., 25th, 1916. Sister Fudge was taken ill, and in spite of all that could be done, she gradually grew worse and worse. She was taken a few months ago to Louisville for an operation by the advice of the family physician, Dr. Simpson, of Breeding, Ky. There she was informed by the doctor that they could not do her any good, so she returned home to die. So on June the 6th, 1917, in the presence of a weeping husband, children, relatives and friends, the grim monster death, came into their home and carried the precious wife and darling mother away.

Sister Fudge professed faith in Christ at the age of about 15, and united with the Christian church. Her many friends say that she has lived a true, devoted Christian life all along the way. We are glad to say that we had the privilege of visiting her during her illness, and reading and praying with her. Although she suffered untold pain almost continually, we found her very patient, willing to live or willing to die. On leaving after prayer one afternoon, she reached out her feeble hand, and taking mine she said with tears in her eyes: Brother Chandler if it is the Lord's will I would like to get well and be with my family like I once was, but if not I am ready for the call, and if I never see you any more this side of the grave, I'll meet you in Glory.

We had to stop a moment for meditation and gaze upon the afflicted, fading form as she lay there rejoicing and praising God. But when we began to see what sister Fudge was soon to be the possessor of, we did not wonder at her rejoicing. A building not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. She leaves the broken hearted companion and the four children mentioned, also two brothers and one sister, Berry Reece, of Sherman, Texas, Logan Reece, of St. Louis, Mo., and Mrs. Burnie Janes, of Nell, Ky.

We extend our sympathy to the bereaved, but we are sure that our loss is her gain in the sweet beyond. She is missed as a wife, mother, sister and neighbor. She was so kind and nice, and always tried to make people happy, especially young people. We all mourn her loss, but she has crossed the dark valley, but not alone, for Christ, the good shepherd accompanied her across. Let us not weep, although we can't call her back, but we can go to her, and live and dwell forever in the home prepared for those who love the Lord.

After song and prayer service conducted in the home by Bro. John Reece, the remains were carried to the family graveyard, where Bro. Dock Janes and the writer both gave a talk of about 15 or 20 minutes each. Then she was laid in the tomb to await the great judgment morning. How sad and lonely was the hour when we turned away to leave her there, never to see the smiling face, or clasp hands in this life, but with all hope of meeting her in Glory with the redeemed and blood washed, where there is no death nor farewells. Let us strive to meet her.

Life Was a Misery

Mrs. F. M. Jones, of Palmer, Okla., writes: "From the time I entered into womanhood . . . I looked with dread from one month to the next. I suffered with my back and bearing-down pain, until life to me was a misery. I would think I could not endure the pain any longer, and I gradually got worse. . . Nothing seemed to help me until, one day, . . . I decided to

CARDUI

"I took four bottles," Mrs. Jones goes on to say, "and was not only greatly relieved, but can truthfully say that I have not a pain. . . It has now been two years since I took Cardui, and I am still in good health. . . I would advise any woman or girl to use Cardui who is a sufferer from any female trouble." If you suffer pain caused from womanly trouble, or if you feel the need of a good strengthening tonic to build up your run-down system, take the advice of Mrs. Jones. Try Cardui. It helped her. Spare the Corn Roots.

In a four-year experiment at the Virginia Experiment Station corn cultivated three times made three pecks more to the acre than corn cultivated five times. Corn kept free from weeds with the least possible stirring of the soil made ten bushels less to the acre than the corn cultivated three times. In a series of experiments running over several years and covering every part of the country where corn is extensively grown, the killing of the weeds without cultivation has given practically the same results as thorough cultivation. Only in the South and the drier parts of the West has cultivation given better results than simple weed-killing. Some farmers might conclude from this that they can afford to leave their corn fields uncultivated, or that they can quit cultivating very early. Either conclusion would be risky. Small yields result whenever weeds are allowed to grow. The largest yields have come from fields cultivated more than the usual number of times. Late cultivation of corn may pay. It will pay only when the early cultivation has been frequent and when the late cultivation is very shallow.

It is beyond question that many farmers reduce their yields of corn by the last one or two workings they give it. The value of corn roots is not yet appreciated. Any cultivation that destroys many roots is likely to do harm rather than good. Kill the weeds in the corn field and spare the roots of the corn.—Southern Agriculturist.

Nation's Great Problem.

Washington, July 5.—Officials, who for obvious reasons, cannot be quoted, declared to-day that if the Government's activities against German spies in the United States could be published, the news would startle the world.

While not admitting they are convinced that the spy system was entirely responsible for the en masse submarine attack on the transport of Gen. Pershing's expedition, it was said that the combined forces of the State, War, Navy and Justice departments were working in cohesion, and systematically unearthing information of an amazing character, and of great value to the Government.

It was pointed out that even with the strictest censorship of mails, cables and press, our allies have not been able to meet the situation to their complete satisfaction. The problem is of far greater magnitude in this country with thousands of aliens, an immense border and countless possible means of outside communication.

POINT TO GERMAN SYSTEM.

Secret service operations, necessarily carried on under cover, are given little or no publicity, and this fact, officials say, gives rise to a surmise that little has been accomplished.

It was pointed out to-day that although the allies have never maintained spy systems as far-reaching, or effective as Germany, even that country, despite her registration of individuals, her comparatively small border line and her network of secret police, has been unable to prevent information of her military moves from reaching the outside world.

Germany's realization of that is shown in her absolute suppression of all mail and cable communications for a considerable period preceding any important military movement.

ATTACK REVIVES RUMORS

The unsuccessful submarine attack on the ships of the American expedition has revived spy rumors in the capital and will result in even more stringent measures if possible, to cloak the movements of military forces from the enemy.

The relief and gratification of officials over the safe arrival of the last units of the expedition is tempered by a manifest feeling of indignation that the German Admiralty was able to lay its plans so well and to attack the American vessels in force before they reached the zone which had been regarded as most dangerous.

Discussion of possible spy activities has taken many angles. Some officials were inclined to believe that the Germans must have had a warning of the definite time agreed upon for the crossing, but others discredited any such theory, arguing that an attack was to have been expected as a natural consequence of the general knowledge that was common property.

There were indications that the department of Justice might be asked to undertake an investigation when army and navy reports on the incident were complete.

NO FURTHER REPORT.

At the Navy Department it was said last night all information which had come through was contained in Secretary Daniels' statement of Tuesday telling how the expedition had encountered two attacks, one of them before reaching the place agreed upon as a rendezvous with Admiral Sims' American destroyers, and had successfully fought off the U-boats and destroyed at least one of them. The Secretary said he might receive a more detailed account later, but it was pointed out that there was little likelihood that it would throw much light on the genesis of the German attack or the information back of it. Officials taking the view that there is no ground for a spy scare suggested that it inevitably was a matter of public information that the crossing of the expedition would follow soon after Gen. Pershing's announced arrival in France. It therefore would not be unusual, these officials argued, if the German U-boats were given general orders to cruise in squadrons across various ocean lanes in the hope that one of the squadrons would intercept the Americans.

ATTACK NATURAL.

That the first attack should have occurred on this side of the usual submarine zone also was regarded by these officials as natural. The Germans, they said, must have expected Admiral Sims to send his war ships from their North Sea stations well to the west to meet the expeditions.

There was little inclination anywhere to attach blame for the attack to any official act of the War or Navy Department. It was pointed out that the movement overseas was conducted with unusual secrecy, considering the large number of men affected, and that the utmost precautions were taken after the ships were at sea to make the time of their arrival on the other side conjectural even to any person knowing the hour of departure.

Officials said, however, that if final reports on the crossing aroused any suspicion of defects in the Government machinery for maintaining secrecy about such operations immediate remedial steps would be taken.

The Death of a Good Woman.

In the passing of Miss Antha Cabbell, on June 25, 1917, at her home in the Zion neighborhood, the community has lost a splendid Christian lady and the church at Pleasant Hill, of which she was a member from her girlhood, a true and faithful member.

She has been afflicted for many years with rheumatism and has suffered much pain and agony, yet she kept a pleasant and cheerful disposition, manifesting much Christian fortitude and patience. Since the death of her mother some five years ago, she and her brother, Ruel, have lived in the home together and by his faithful help and attendance on her a very tender tie had developed between them and hence her going out has brought a great sorrow to the heart of her brother, Ruel, and to the other members of the family as well. Mrs. John Young, her only sister, has been a faithful helper in all her afflictions. There are 6 brothers and one sister living. Three of them live in the West and could not be here when the end came.

She expressed her readiness to go and bade her loved ones good-bye, asking them to meet her in heaven. May the peace of God rest upon all the family and especially on the lonely brother who will miss her more than any one else.

Z. T. Williams.

About the Draft.

There will be no class exemptions, each case be judged individually. When the list of persons designated for service is prepared at Washington and communicated to the local board they will notify the men selected and they will appear before the board for examination. A physical examination will first be made of each man drafted, and after that the exemption rules will be applied to each case. Men with persons wholly dependent upon them will be required to file an affidavit being signed by the wife, if any, the head of a neighboring family, or some third party.

Farmers will not be exempted as a class. The case of each farmer drafted will be examined closely. Those whose exemption is absolutely necessary to the maintenance of the national interest during the emergency, will not be required to serve, but it must be proven absolutely by affidavit that the loss of the individual would be a direct, substantial, material loss to the agricultural interest.

Certificates of exemption granted on the first draft will not be permanent, and may be revoked, or granted only for prescribed periods.

Bomb Throwing.

London was subjected Saturday to an air raid on perhaps a larger scale than any the Germans had previously attempted. A score or more of airplanes flew over the center of the city, diving down suddenly to a comparatively low altitude, dropping their bombs quickly and speeding off southward. Their explosives caused some damage in the heart of London and killed thirty-seven persons and injured 141. These official figures show the casualties to have been not nearly so heavy as in the big raid of June 13, when 151 persons were killed and 430 injured.

On that occasion, the Germans lost one machine, according to the British though Berlin claimed all its machines returned safely. This time, however, four of the German raiders were brought down, one by army aviators at the mouth of the Thames and three after an engagement with British naval aviators forty miles out at sea on the return trip.

Furthermore, British Airmen at Dunkirk, across the channel, who went out looking for the raiders and failed to find them, did such effective repressive work on other German aircraft that seven hostile machines were accounted for within a brief period.

War News.

[By Associated Press.]

The Russian army which recently showed the effects of its reorganization by starting an offensive in Galicia, has sprung another surprise on the central powers by activity in Mesopotamia, the Petrograd War Office announcing that Russian troops and the newly reinforced Turkish detachments are engaged in battle in the Bistan region of the Persian-Mesopotamian frontier.

The heavy gunfire of both the Russians and the Teutons in the region of Ziochoff, on the Eastern Galician front, was increased according to the official Petrograd statement.

German soldiers near Ballestchi, on the Rumanian front, held up white flags and called upon the Russians to fraternize, says the official statement given out by the Russian war office, but Russian artillery fired on the flags.

recent effort to drive the French from their commanding positions on the Chemin des Dames, and on the Aisne front, the Germans are now turning their attention to the Champagne, apparently with a similar purpose.

Attacks were made by the Crown Prince's troops last night on the French lines west of Mont Cornillet and southeast of Tahure. The drives evidently were not of such intensity as was that earlier in the week along the Aisne, and the Paris official report says they were easily repulsed.

The artillery fighting is proceeding vigorously in these and other sectors of the Champagne. In the Verdun region also the French guns are active. With the evident effort of making the German trenches west and North of Hill 304 untenable, General Petain's artillery is pouring a destructive fire upon them. Apparently the Crown Prince has none to secure a hold on such ground here as his troops were able to seize in their sudden rush a few days ago.

London is reticent as to what is going on along the British front in France, where there have been indications that some important movement was in prospect. The only activity reported was a nocturnal raid on British outposts near Bullecourt, which was repulsed.

In Macedonia there is some revival of activity, but seemingly not on a large scale. Enemy troops, probably Bulgarians, launched an assault on the ridge west of Doljoli, southwest of Lake Doiran, but were compelled by a British counter-attack to relinquish the footing they obtained.

Make Your Corn Field Grow Two Crops this Year.

This year, all over the United States, people are trying hard to grow every food plant as abundantly as possible. The people of Adair county are doing their part in this great movement, but before we decide that we have done all we can do for this year in the way of planting let us see if we can't think of some other crop we can still plant that will be valuable.

The Southern or Black-eyed Pea.—It is a common practice in many parts of the south to sow cow peas between the rows of corn after the corn is laid by. This practice ought to be more common. Everybody who has a corn field ought to do it.

There is a form of cow peas called the black-eyed pea, and another called the 'crowder,' that not only makes good food for stock and improves the soil, but makes good food for people too.

Some people begin to use the pods of these peas while they are still tender just as they use snap beans. They are best, however, after they become large enough to shell. They can then be used like 'butter beans' either while green, or when they have fully ripened they can be kept all winter and used as dried beans are used.

The Demand for Them is Growing.—Last fall they were sold green on the Nashville market in trays that would hold about a pint. Later they were sold dry by the pound. At Christmas time they were selling at three pounds for twenty-five cents. At present, they are fifteen cents a pound.

There is no question that every bushel grown in Adair county this year will find a market. Of course our fresh vegetables and fruit cannot be marketed yet in the cities on account of our poor transportation facilities, but it will not be long until our roads will be good enough to put us within reach of Louisville within three or four hours by auto-truck.

Now is a Good Time to Plant Black-eyed Peas in Corn.—Within a few days most corn will be laid by. It would be an excellent plan to drill a row of peas between the corn rows. If sown now they will mature about corn cutting time. They can then be picked and stored for winter.

If desired for hay, it is not a difficult matter to pull the vines by hand or cut them with a corn knife about the time the earliest pods are full grown. This plan would help provide means of making many an old cow smile on winter evenings when otherwise she might weep, and it certainly is a quicker way to gather fodder and better fodder than pulling the fodder from corn.

If the peas are not desired in any of the above ways, hogs can be turned into the corn field when the peas begin getting ripe and thereby be enabled to take on a good many 15-cent pounds without injuring the corn. Of course the ordinary speckled cow peas can be substituted for the black-eyed type, but most people prefer the black-eyed pea or the 'crowder' when they are to be used for the table.
